DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. Since the invention, as described the body of the claim, is not tied to the technological arts (e.g. the invention can read on mental steps), the claims are non-statutory.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In the claims, "acquiring the trade price" is indefinite. It is not clear how this price is determined. Also, the criteria for determining if this trade price "meets" the suggested offering price is unclear. Also, an "allowable range" is not defined. Moreover, an "excessive difference" is undefined.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wit Capital (selected documents) in view of Gerard et al., Trading and Manipulation Around Seasoned Equity Offerings, The Journal of Finance 1993.

5. The primary reference teaches a method of supporting a trade of securities, comprising the steps of: (a) storing a record of a public offering of a new set of securities, the record containing a suggested offering price of the securities and a subscription period of the public offering; (b) processing buying and selling orders for the securities; (c) acquiring a trade price at which the buying and selling orders are executed at said processing step; (d) determining whether the trade price acquired at said acquiring step (c) meets the suggested offering price; (e) checking whether the present date and time is within the subscription period; (See, Wit Capital, Rules and Procedures, pages 1-8). The prior art fails to teach of (f) placing a buying or selling order at a price that is within an allowable range around the suggested offering price, when said determining step (d) has revealed an excessive difference between the trade price and the suggested offering price, and only when said checking step (e) has determined that the present date and time is within the subscription period. The prior art does teach of setting so called Stop Limit orders. The secondary reference teaches the relationships between seasoned offerings and trading in the outstanding shares and teaches that it is common for the secondary offering to trade at a price less than the market price. The examiner takes official notice that it is well known to pursue trading arbitrage opportunities. Further, the examiner takes official notice that it is well known in the art for offering companies to pursue high offering prices. Moreover the examiner takes official notice that claims 3-8 are examples of the former. It would have been obvious for one skilled in the art at the time to have combined the references as motivated by the desire to lock in an arbitrage opportunities of claims 3-8.
